WALKER MOVES FOR APPEAL TO COURTS

Case Likely To Be Appealed If Decision Is Against New York Mayor.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 12.—The courts, and not Governor Roosevelt, may have the last word in the Walker case.

That the defense intends to turn to the courts if the governor's decision is against Mayor Walker has been indicated by the legal exceptions taken to two of Mr. Roosevelt's rulings at the hearing in the executive chamber on the charges against the mayor.

The defense has challenged the governor's right to scrutinize the mayor's first term and also his admission of Hofstadter committee findings as evidence. John J. Curran, Walker's attorney, took exceptions yesterday on both these grounds.

There was no hint as to how such an appeal would be taken.

Legal steps to restrain the governor from entertaining the Hofstadter charges against the mayor already have been taken by George Donnelly, a home rule advocate, on the ground that the governor has no authority to sit in judgment.

To Withhold Decision

While the governor's council holds the executive has the authority to sit in judgment on the mayor, the challenge to this right has already resulted in the governor agreeing to withhold his decision until after the supreme court meets Aug. 19 to rule on the question.

Donnelly merely secured an order calling on the governor to show cause why he should not be restrained. There was no restraining writ issued and the governor could have gone ahead and announced his decision prior to the show cause hearing, but he agreed to withhold it until that date as a matter of judicial courtesy. He did not indicate how soon he might make his decision after Aug. 19, or what action he might take should the court ruling be against him.

The hearing was in recess today until Monday. Governor Roosevelt was in Hyde Park and Mayor Walker had gone to New York. Mrs. Walker, who has been ill, remained at her Albany hotel.

Receives No Get Money

So far, the mayor has denied flatly that he accepted money from the Equitable Bus Co. for a European trip, has said that he did not know when he received Reliance Bronze and Steel bonds, or that the company made traffic posts purchased by the city, and said there was no hidden reason behind Paul Block's stock deal which netted the mayor $246,000.

The mayor left for New York accompanied by his friend, A. C. Blumenthal, theatrical and real estate magnate, who said on the train he was ready to offer Walker a position at $100,000 a year, if he should be removed from office.

"Not in the movies," he replied to a question.

"What then?"

"Why not as a lawyer?" he asked, and would say no more.

Aerial Artist "Through" After Fatal Accident

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 12.—Orville La Rose, trapeze artist, brushed away tears today and vowed he was through with the show business forever.

The first accident his act had suffered in 10 years took the life of Irene Berger, 31, one of his partners, last night, and injured his young wife so badly she will probably die.

La Rose had finished his own part, and stood looking up 125 feet to where Miss Berger and his wife, Roxie, were performing above the Steel Pier, amusement place. Miss Berger hung from a trapeze with her feet, Mrs. La Rose dangled from another by her feet.

When Miss Berger reached to catch Roxie, her foot slipped and both shot to the floor. The former died in a hospital, the latter suffered a fractured back and punctured lung.

CHATTERTON-FORBES DIVORCE IS GRANTED

Another Actor-Actress Romance Blasted as Court Approves Decree.

MINDEN, Nevada, Aug. 12.—Another shattered actor-actress romance—that of Ruth Chatterton and Ralph Forbes—was sealed and filed today in the court records of this "Reno annex" divorce center today.

The decree was granted to Forbes yesterday after he made a quick automobile trip from Reno, filed his complaint, and went through the formality of a hearing before District Judge Edgar Eather. Judge Eather then ordered all papers in the case sealed.

Two attorneys represented Miss Chatterton, who was reported to be in New York.

Previous plans, the attorneys intimated, were for a friendly arrangement—along the line of the recent Ann Harding-Harry Belmore divorce—under which Miss Chatterton was to come here and file the suit, using Forbes' residence in the state to give the court jurisdiction. No explanation was made concerning the switch in the proposed plans.

Forbes' attorney said the decree was obtained on the grounds of mental cruelty and said a property settlement, the terms of which were not announced, was approved by the court.

Forbes and Miss Chatterton were married Dec. 20, 1921.

HARRISON, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Ruth Chatterton, actress, who was divorced yesterday from Ralph Forbes, was married shortly after noon today to George Brock, movie actor, at Harrison, N. Y.

HITLER TURNS DOWN CABINET POST OFFER

Nazi Chieftain Upsets Plans by Refusal to Take Vice-Chancellorship.

TO CONTINUE OPPOSITION

Declines To Accept Anything Not Allowing Him Absolute Control.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—President Von Hindenburg asked for 15 minutes this afternoon with Adolf Hitler, head of the National Socialist party, and announced after the conference that the present cabinet under Chancellor Franz von Papen will remain in office.

Hitler reiterated his demand that on the strength of his party's power in the reichstag he be made chancellor of Germany.

The president refused "for moral reasons and for the sake of the fatherland."

With great dignity he added that his conscience would not permit him to entrust to one party the sole responsibility for the entire German people.

Plans with Hitler

He entrusted Hitler to be content with a cabinet office, but not that of chancellor.

The Nazi chieftain refused. He asserted nothing but the chancellorship would satisfy him and that he would not share responsibility with others.

He straightened his shoulders, clicked his heels, saluted and left.

Several of his party associates who were present at the interview, went back to the chancellery to consult on the consequences of Hitler's refusal.

Hitler's refusal upset the plans of President Von Hindenburg, and the present government by declining the offer of a vice-chancellorship in the new cabinet which is to be formed soon.

Hitler announced to Chancellor Franz von Papen his policy would be one of determined opposition to the present government. He also declined an offer of the ministry of the interior for one of his party lieutenants.

Offered Vice-Chancellorship

Plans had been laid to offer Hitler a vice-chancellorship, which would include the premiership of the state of Prussia, which has been vacant since a virtual dictatorship was established by Chancellor von Papen a few weeks ago.

Hitler declined the Prussian premiership in combination with the ministry of vice-chancellor, demanding instead that he be made chancellor with absolute control of the cabinet.

CHICAGOANS TO HAVE MURDER INSURANCE

Milk Drivers' Union Moves To Protect Heads from Gangsters.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Chicago's long and bitter fight against the gangster today was marked by a new development—insurance against murder by hoodlums.

Officials of the milk drivers' union, which gangsters are reported to have threatened with invasion, are the men insured.

The union voted to pay $15,000 out of its $300,000 fund to the family of any of its officers killed by hoodlums. The money is payable within 21 hours of such a crime.

The Chicago Daily Tribune said it was understood the fund was intended principally for the protection of Robert C. Fitchie, president of the union. Steve C. Sumner, its 10-year-old business agent, and Ray Bryant, its trustee.

The action of the union was taken after its members had been addressed by Fitchie, who was kidnapped last December and for whom the organization paid $50,000 ransom.

"You men know what happened in December and you know what's happening now," he said. "If you have called at headquarters recently you have seen the armed posted doors, steel shutters, windows and bullet proof peepholes. You know the police have a machine gun post across the street for our protection."

He referred to recent steps taken by the union to protect itself against the threatened invasion—a move which the newspaper said the hoodlums would find a hard job.

Sumner, small but spry as a man of 50, said the union was ready to "shoot it out" with the gangsters, if a showdown became necessary.

Held in Shooting

CHARDON, O., Aug. 12.—George Bond, 65, was held under $50,000 bond today awaiting grand jury action on a charge of shooting to kill his son, Edward Bond, 21. He pleaded not guilty and waived preliminary hearing in a justice of the peace court.

MINE GUARDS FIRED ON AS STRIKE RIOTING CONTINUES

HIGHWAY GARAGE TO BE ERECTED HERE

$12,000 Structure To House Road Machinery, Offices Planned for Garden City Pike.

A state highway department garage for Marion county, to cost between $10,000 and $12,000, will be built in the near future. It was announced today by Grover C. Snyder, of 131 Silver street, director of maintenance in the state highway department.

The department this week acquired title to slightly more than nine acres lying just east of the Pennsylvania railroad tracks on the north end of Garden City pike, or West Fairground street extended. The land was purchased from Clarence and Myrna Walker for $2,200.

The garage will accommodate maintenance machinery, road marking equipment and other tools of the state highway department to be used in the care of state highways in this county, Mr. Snyder said.

Office room for the resident engineer and his assistants also will be provided on the grounds, he said.

The standard plan for garages and offices followed by the department in other counties will be followed here, Mr. Snyder said.

It is hoped that work on the building will be started in the fall, he said.

RALLY CLOSES FIVE-DAY TOUR

Republican Motorcade Winds Up Ohio Trip with Party Demonstration.

CANDIDATES LAUD HOOVER

President Praised for Accomplishments, While Roosevelt Is Flayed.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 12.—Their five-day motor tour ended, Ohio Republican candidates squared away today for a furious campaign which they hope to climax with victory in the November election.

The tour, which took the candidates into the state's 22 congressional districts, ended here last night with a rally at which they lauded President Hoover and attacked Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, the Democratic presidential nominee.

David A. Ingalls, candidate for governor, Attorney General Gilbert Britman, senatorial nominee, and other candidates trained their guns on Roosevelt after former Lieutenant Governor Charles H. Lewis, state campaign chief, predicted a sweeping Republican victory in November.

Britman termed President Hoover's acceptance speech "one of the great state papers" of America and declared the utterances of Roosevelt had been "an appeal to the emotions and the underdog."

Recalling Roosevelt's "forgotten man" speech, Britman said "there is no forgotten man in this republic of ours," and concluded by saying "don't let the people be misled by pork-barrel Garner and demagogic Roosevelt."

The people, Ingalls said, "will not take the leadership of a man who is a showman." In preference to the administration of President Hoover whom he praised for undertaking to lead the national economic slump, Roosevelt, he said, had shown himself "vague and indefinite" in all his statements.

Party leaders from the seventh, eleventh and twelfth districts attended the rally at which two former political foes "buried the hatchet." They were former State Senator George Bender of Cleveland and L. T. Marshall of Xenia who five years ago carried on a statewide battle over the Marshall bill referendum.

STATE BLOCKS DEFENSE MOVE

Attempt To Show Clarke Took Own Life Barred by Court Ruling.

PHYSICIANS NOT POSITIVE

Unable To Give Scientific Answer: Gun Held Close to Head.

By The Associated Press

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 12.—State's Attorney Vernon Hawthorne today blocked attempts of counsel for Captain W. M. Lancaster, an army aviator, to show by evidence of physicians that Clarke took his own life.

Dr. M. H. Tallman, Dr. Donald F. Jones and Dr. Walter G. Jones Jr., who performed an autopsy on Clarke's body, each testified that the pilot had fatally wounded himself April 21, in the home of Mrs. Jennie M. Keith-Miller, his fiancée, was pressed firmly against his head.

Objection Sustained

The state's objection was sustained when defense counsel James M. Carson asked the physicians if they could say whether Clarke committed suicide.

In each case, the witness said he could not make such a statement of his own scientific knowledge, but could only speak of probabilities.

The defendant took the stand briefly during the morning to elaborate upon his earlier testimony.

His testimony concerned a letter from Clarke to Lancaster, which has not been found.

"I recall now that when I forged two suicide notes after Haden was shot I attempted to copy his signature on one of the letters," Lancaster said. "I recall seeing the letter after the shooting but have not seen it since."

Smith Moves Changed

Captain Lancaster testified that the room in which Clarke was fatally shot is not now in the same condition it was at the time of the shooting.

The jury, the defendant and Circuit Judge H. F. Atkinson visited the scene of the shooting yesterday.

The defense has maintained that Clarke was a suicide in view of testimony of Arthur H. Hamilton, criminologist of Auburn, N. Y., that a suicide bullet wound shows evidence of a pistol being held against the head of the wounded person.

THREE HELD IN NEW OUTBREAK

Suspects in Terrorism Under Arrest at Athens; Activities Investigated.

3 BLASTS ROCK AREA

Dynamite Explosions Set Off by Sympathizers; Little Damage Reported.

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, O., Aug. 12.—Three dynamite blasts and sporadic sniping at Ohio National Guard troops marked a continuation of violence in the Hocking Valley blumensau coal strike area today. None was injured and no damage was reported.

Shoppers fired about 20 shots at the National Guard barracks at No. 25 mine of the Manhattan Coal Co. at Chaucery, and guardsmen returned to fire with machine gun bursts but the shooting was quickly at a long range.

Two of the dynamite blasts were set off in hillsides near Green's Run at Nelsonville and the third was believed an unsuccessful attempt to dynamite the tipples of the No. 25 mine of the Ohio Coaleries Co. north of here.

Frightened Away

National Guardsmen frightened the blasters away from the No. 25 mine, officials said, and the dynamite was exploded without harm along a roadside.

Tear gas was used to disperse pickets at the Jack Run mine of the New York Coal Co. near Nelsonville after the group was alleged to have accused workmen of being "scabs" and refused to return to their homes.

Three suspects of past strike terrorism were under arrest while national guardsmen conducted an inquiry of the recent disorders.

The subjects Leonard Bin, Frank Kammann and Carl Conrad, were taken into custody yesterday after 12 hours of observation in which three houses were searched, three fired at working miners and two dynamite charges exploded.

Another dynamite blast occurred last night, near the Ohio coaleries company's No. 26 mine, about 20 miles north of here. It did no apparent damage.

Change Patrol Method

Officers of the troops in the nearby fields announced yesterday the method of patrolling Athens county had been changed and that they expected disorders henceforth would be held to a minimum. They did not explain their plans.

At the same time, county officers received reports that a violence committee was making an "undercover" investigation and would soon be ready to present evidence to the proper authorities.

Although Major Stuart Baxter obtained sufficient evidence had been obtained for the arrest of the three suspects, the filing of charges against them was delayed pending completion of the National Guard inquiry.

Most of the shootings which preceded the arrests occurred at the No. 26 mine of the Manhattan Coal Co. just as the working miners were leaving the pit.

Illinois Citizens Band for Protection

By The Associated Press

BENTON, Ill., Aug. 12.—Citizens of northern Illinois are banding together for an offensive against the growth of radicalism in coal-mining areas.

Three organizations to combat radical movements already have been formed, at Benton, West Frankfort and Johnson City, all in the blumensau coal fields. Officials of the United Mine Workers of America, have charged that Communists, taking advantage of the bitter fight over a new wage agreement for Illinois miners, are striving to strengthen their influence over the workers.

By The Associated Press

BRIDGEPORT, O., Aug. 12.—William Z. Foster, Communist party candidate for president, will make a tour of the eastern Ohio blumensau coal fields Sept. 12, the National Mine Union headquarters said today. He will speak at Steubenville and Maize.

NEEDY CAMPING IN TOLEDO PARK

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 12.—Nearly 100 men, women and children seeking relief funds, camped last night on the Lucas county courthouse lawn, and several others were said to have pitched their tents on the grounds. They came from Washington township.

Some of the relief-seekers pitched tents on the lawn, but most of them slept on benches or on the ground. They came from Washington township.

Leaders of the township both said county commissioners they could public credit arranged for them so they can buy groceries. Many of the campers are entirely without funds.

To Marion Nixon and Ralph Bellamy, in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," takes the assignment of ushering in a greater fall movie season at the Ohio theater.

The best in talking pictures of modern accepted types as produced by Warner Brothers—First National Pictures, William Fox and United Artists are included in this program that brings to Marion an outstanding talking picture season.

The "Rebecca" opening at the Ohio is the new talking picture version of the great book by Kate Douglas Wiggin, as adapted by Charlotte Thompson. The same story enjoyed a tremendous success as a stage play and was again a great hit as a silent picture many years ago, starring Mary Pickford and recalled today by thousands of fans. The Nixon-Bellamy picture is an entirely new production and contains nothing of the former silent film.

The story, familiar already to a large approving audience, concerns the life of Rebecca (Marion Nixon) poor and of a large family on sunnybrook farm, with her rich maiden aunt in Riverboro, her acquaintance, friendship and love for Dr. Laid, (Ralph Bellamy), who in the final climax saves Aunt Miranda's life in an emergency operation, and Rebecca's part in bringing honor and respect to the home of Zion Simpson (Alan Hale), who, because of his beliefs, does not recognize Mrs. Simpson, the mother of his children, as his legal wife.

Mrs. Nixon vividly the character of Rebecca with all the charm of her art. She makes of her a tense, eager, vital, imaginative young girl, who sees beauty in everything. As she steps on the train at Sunnybrook you see the personification going out into the world to conquer. Her little old fashioned jacket, with puff sleeves, funny hat with porcelain gloves, high shoes and cotton stockings are only outward manifestations. She goes much deeper in her spiritual portrayal. She makes of Rebecca a live, radiant flame, embuing every one with magic and excitement.

Under the skillful handling of Bellamy, Dr. Laid gives a new importance and significance to the immortal romance of Rebecca. Defiantly he wins Rebecca's confidence and faith with his heart warming smile. Sternly, he rebukes all who try to take advantage of her. Finally he saves the life of Aunt Miranda and proves to all that he is sincere in his devotion to Rebecca and to his faith in her.

The main vehicle of the picture of course is the romance between

Nixon and Bellamy. These two are ideally cast and their performance rates particular mention. Incidentally, fans are tipped off to watch these two. They're coming along fast! Rebecca is for everyone, both children and adults. It is a highly entertaining, charming and decidedly amusing picture; a clean, sweet, pleasant romance built around a sturdy understanding story. The book and the play are classics that grown ups all remember—the young folks all read the book—and the picture has been made in keeping with the tempo of today. It will be presented at the Ohio theater Sunday, continuously from 1 to 11 p. m. and four performances daily on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The following are some of the big pictures that will be shown during The Ohio's Greater Fall Movie Season: Conrad Nagel and Doris Kenyon in "Man Called Back"; Chas. Farrell and Janet Gaynor in "First Year"; and "Precious"; Wm. Powell and Kay Francis in "Great Jewel Robbery"; "One Way Passage"; Edw. Reward for Merit.

Laws work as well as people will permit them to work. It is a significant commentary on the functioning of one type of American law that two men who applied it where others had failed are selected by President Hoover for advancement.

They are George E. C. Johnson, United States prosecutor at Chicago, and his assistant, Dwight H. Green, who gained themselves reputations for moving Chicago gangsters off the streets into prison cells. Johnson has been named a judge; Green has been advanced to his chief's position.

Another advancement for Merit was balked by the senate, which refused to confirm President Hoover's appointment of Judge James H. Wilkinson to a place on the circuit court bench. It was Wilkinson who frustrated the attempted "deal" by which Al Capone was to get off with a light sentence as a reward for pleading guilty to charges of income tax evasion brought against him. Perhaps the senate will fall to see Merit in the advancement of Johnson and Green, also.

For their part in proving that Chicago gangsters, best known and most powerful of the national breed, are not invulnerable to the restraining hand of society they have earned the gratitude of the country, regardless of whatever reward may come their way in more tangible form. It probably does not matter a great deal that Al Capone and other notorious hoodlums are in jail, except as it reassures many who had doubted that a criminal with a fortune at his command could be touched. Johnson, Green and others proved to Americans that law would work when there were men able and willing to make it work. An advancement is little enough to repay them for the good example.

Easy Chair Spectators.

The Olympic games of today are reminders of many things, from championships of previous years to the lore of the Greeks and from there on back again. Each revival of the event opens a storehouse of memory and speculation to delight the world.

This year's games are a reminder, also, that the world is becoming a more interesting, if not always a better, place to live. Consider the breadth over which detailed descriptions and photographs of the Olympic games were spread this year, almost as rapidly as the events were run off.

The workman on his electric street car read in his morning paper everything that had happened the previous day. The office worker was kept informed throughout the day concerning the achievements of his favorites. Moving pictures of important events were shown on the screen. Newspaper and magazine pictures brought athletes closer by far to the easy chair spectators a thousand miles from Los Angeles than the eye of stadium spectators could bring performers a thousand feet away.

There was not an instant during the course of the games that this process of spreading enjoyment of the Olympic games was not continuing—in the United States, in England, Canada, France, Japan, Australia, Finland, Sweden—in every nation with contestants in the game, and that almost includes every nation with newspapers and moving pictures. It was one of the biggest stories of the year—a story that ran continuously for two weeks with no cessation of suspense.

Most remarkable of all, it was a cheerful story—a constantly expanding record of physical accomplishment creditable to mankind. Warned to expect many threats to kindly international feeling, Americans, particularly, were pleased with the absence of poor sportsmanship. As national hosts they felt a collective responsibility for the success of the event this year. Now that it has come to a successful conclusion they are frankly happy that the United States has given the best host to Olympic athletes such a high mark at which to aim.

Pioneer.

It's a long step from Rin-Tin-Tin bounding over the frozen snow to rescue the heroine from a fate far worse than death to the bright all-barkies that have delighted movie audiences within the last year. The most famous dog in the world saw many long steps taken in the moving picture industry, he himself, was a pioneer. And like all pioneers he had to die, his work incomplete.

His first pictures were crude affairs, relatively speaking. Instead of screams of terror and shouts of triumph there was nothing but dead silence. Pictures were backtracked; they must have looked like this stuff, even to a dog. Actors mimicked the camera, exaggerated their motions, struck heroic poses and collapsed accordingly. Rin-Tin-Tin never knew it, but he owed his success to being perfectly natural in his part. Among poor actors he stood out like a genuine star.

In the language of promotion he was a "natural." His history was romantic—a puppy abandoned by the Germans, adopted by an American and made the most accomplished dog in the world. The United States bought thousands of police dogs because it liked Rin-Tin-Tin. It poured out a fortune into the hands of his owner, who passed on much of it along as could be used by dogdom's most pampered member. No only was Rin-Tin-Tin for all that; he kept his valet down and his brain clear.

A dog will carry on in his place—a dog who may be 30 times as good, but who can not expect to get one-tenth the attention that was his famous father's normal due. Rin-Tin-Tin was first, and to him who points the way belongs honor far greater than ever can be given to those who only follow.

Quiet Exit.

John J. Raakob's retirement from politics taken place under unusual circumstances. He makes his exit quietly, moving neither to the throes of applause or the hisses of derision. The very manner of his passing indicates that quality of character is responsible.

No one bothers to deny that Mr. Raakob has made mistakes. Like most party chairmen he was cursed more soundly by his own brethren than by their common enemy, the Republicans. But Mr. Raakob's mistakes were like those of an honest umpire; they were of the head, not of the heart.

He did the best he could to select a man whom he honestly believed should have been president of the United States—Allied E. Smith. He gave full measures of his time, money and influence. He failed, but came back fighting to try again in this year's convention.

His efforts are responsible for much of the vigor of the good Democratic platform, which bristles with Allied E. Smith's ideas. Perhaps as he steps out of the picture, quietly and bearing his disappointment like a gentleman, Mr. Raakob is not without hope that when the record of events is written his name will not be far below the highest.

The "You Must" Approach.

The tactics of American Communists in the presence of authority don't vary much. They depend on an impossible demand to produce a firm denial, from which they draw the bitter essence of down-trodden martyrdom.

Waldo Frank, Sherwood Anderson and a few lesser known writers used this form of approach on President Hoover last Wednesday. In the interest of "truth," they demanded an audience for the purpose of demanding that the President defend in his acceptance speech the handling of the bonus marchers in Washington.

Men who know people as well as these men should are short-sighted not to realize that they serve themselves and the cause of Communism badly by an obvious attempt to embarrass the President of the United States. There is an unexplainable reaction to attempts to mistreat the individual who serves as the symbol of this democratic organization.

American folk that get into action on the basis of the professional embarrasment who worry the administrators of local government by their impossible demands are aggravated the more when the "you must" approach is used in the White House. American Communists are foolish to bet for trouble; they are tolerated because it hasn't been difficult to deal with them.

There are, unfortunately, many truths. Americans are not ready yet to grant agents of a destructive political sect any extraordinary privileges in doing anything their own and often peculiar conceptions. The unreasonable demands by representatives of Communism are beginning to amount to a frustration of their purpose, which seems to be the perpetual embarrassment of constituted authority.

A Boon for Bachelors.

A housing experiment in Vienna, Austria, for the purpose of providing comfortable quarters for single people of both sexes may produce some interesting results. A hint of its possibilities is given in the lease for tenants, which forbids them to marry.

There are all sorts of reasons for prolonged continuance in a state of single blessedness. They are too numerous to begin to mention them. It is easier to consider a few of the reasons for abandonment of bachelorhood; they lie closer to the surface.

One is loneliness. The Vienna experiment, utilizing the city's first skyscraper as a bachelor apartment hotel, will attempt to give companionship without responsibility. The prospect for success is bright; no congenial person ever was lonely in a dormitory.

Another is comfort. This factor, also, will be dealt with in the Vienna experiment. The bachelor apartments will be models of convenience, attractively located in what is destined to be an outstanding building. In addition to comfort is provided in the apartments there will be lounges for general use.

Americans, of course, will realize with a sensation of moral shock that the same building will house bachelors of both sexes, but will recognize at the same time the manifest advantages of ignoring the barrier that usually separates single people from each other. If bachelor existence be a matter of conviction, as implied in the tenants' lease, a community of both sexes would appear to offer a solution for an important social problem.

A vast deal is left to conjecture, however. It seems important that those who may be interested in the experiment be kept supplied with statistics on an aspect of the experiment which should be an accurate indicator of its success. How many of the leases will be broken? Perhaps that is the thing some shrewd experimenter is depending on to make his bachelor apartment building a money-maker.

Comment of the Press

County fairs are being announced by posters. They are the usual posters, with pumpkins, sheaves of wheat, bunches of grapes and apples pouring out of a cornucopia; with trotting horses and enormously fat pigs in the background. The only change, after twenty-five years, is that there won't be any Professor doing a balloon ascension.

Anybody who went up in a balloon three days was a Professor. He deserved the title. The extreme triumph, the chief applause and the one big act of the fair was reserved for him. The gas bag was filled over a fire up shot, and the Professor, hanging to a trapeze, displayed his hair-raising bravery to the art of aerostatics.

Then, with the coming of the airplane, these centaurs of the air became extinct. Not a single county fair this year will offer as the emotion of seeing a Professor to go up. It is a handicap show with Hamlet left out, or a Roman circus without a gladiator to the whisper of heroes a fleet of airplanes is a more substantial part of a fair and a parachute.

About the only relic of the same name going to the real scene, being just a professor of aerostatics. The other day when his small son asked to be taken up he remarked: "I didn't take my boy to be a balloonist."

Better Spray a Fly Than Swat Him.

Flies have been known to mankind through all time, but it is only within the last thirty years that medical science discovered them to be carriers of disease. Before this discovery flies were a nuisance, of course, but they were regarded as harmless and were permitted to breed in enormous numbers. This was reasonable when no one suspected the relationship between flies and disease. It is not excusable today, but unfortunately many still tolerate flies and do not seem to realize the dangers of these insects.

Science has decided that the fly may possibly transmit the germs of more than thirty diseases. Typhoid fever, diarrhea and other summer complaints, it is thought, may be caused by the fly, and though not definitely proved, many authorities believe the germs of infantile paralysis are carried by the fly.

Most individuals instinctively avoid flies. Because of their fear of germs and disease, they refuse to buy food that is not clean. Yet these same persons tolerate the disease-laden fly in their homes.

The home may be scrupulously clean, but if flies are present, germs are present. Beat the flies, then, if there is only one fly in the house it is potentially dangerous and should be destroyed. I can not over-emphasize the importance of this attitude toward flies, particularly if there are small children in the family.

Every one should enlist in the war against the fly, for the reason can not be successfully co-operated unless everybody co-operates.

Cleanliness is the password in this campaign. Fifth and decomposed organic matter, such as garbage, must be carefully destroyed

WICKEDEST MAN.

The women's crusade against the saloons, which started at Hillsboro, Ohio, in 1873, and spread over Ohio and into nearby states, brought to light at New Vienna, Clinton county, John C. Van Pelt, who rather took pride in the appellation, "Wickedest man in Ohio." The women were not deterred by his reputation and visited his saloon, "The Dead End."

Next day, the saloon front was specially decorated for the crusaders. In one window was displayed an ax with bloodstains on it, and through the glass in the door the proprietor could be seen with a huge club. The women came as before, knelt and prayed. Van Pelt did not use his club. Instead, he seized a bucket of scrub and threw it against the ceiling over their heads. Soon the bedraggled women went outside and continued their crusade before the door. Van Pelt standing in the door and hurrying foot threvestive at them.

When he again confronted the women, Van Pelt proposed to let them enter on condition he be permitted to make every third prayer. His prayers were mostly denunciations of women for bringing sin into the world, but he soon weakened on his own proposition.

At the end of a week, he announced his surrender. He declared he would quit and never sell whiskey again. With his own hands, he swung the ax that broke out the ends of his whiskey and beer barrels.

New York Day by Day

BY O. O. MONTREY.

New York, Aug. 13—Purely personal piffle. I care nothing for Ethel Merman's singing, but I like to watch her point her fingers in the air. Before my marriage, I pawned a gold watch 37 times. Somehow, I've never gotten around to the Algonquin at lunch time. I'm fascinated prowling around 8 and 10 cent stores.

I used to rush by freshly painted buildings for fear of catching "painter's colic." I like to balloon in open spaces. In stepping into a room to meet David Belasco, one time, I tripped to the floor, which is making an entrance.

My last movie crush is for Karen Morley. Coffee, to me, is just something to quench the thirst. I've worn spats the year around for 22 years. Nearly everybody in my home town knows me.

"Dunk," a nickname by Charlie Vanecko, a boyhood playmate. My brother often sleeps, sitting on his haunches, in the corner with his face to the wall. Lilyan Tashman never looks the same to me as she did the last time I saw her. I've always thought I'd like to live a while in Vermont and in the Ozarks. I expect the worst, dentally, eating butter popples.

A perennial fount of information about New York is Roy L. McCordell, the humorist. Brooklyn, to me, is more remote than Boston. And, I'm sorry, Michigan is the prettiest named section. No magazine or newspaper editor has ever asked me to fill my stuff to his policies.

Roxy is Broadway's most engaging personality. All of a sudden I've developed a pronounced distaste for apples. I regard Dwight Morrow as one of the outstanding Americans of the generation. Commencing has never struck me as having the slightest literary significance. I can not warm up to notes of condolences.

Nobody puts enough cheese in macaroni. I once tried to get a job as secretary to Andrew Carnegie. Nothing will move me from an argument between taxi-drivers until I chide. The name Isahel has a regal sound. I'm flustered over trifles, astonishingly calm in sudden emergencies, and I like to dry dishes.

I can not remember people met at tea, and I quit dining ten years ago. A color combination of pink and green produces a faint nausea. I winced picking up an ice-pick and all Chinese, to me, seem half asleep. The most accurate man I ever knew was called "Sag" Mulligan, a fireman.

I like the smell of liquid styrofoam. I've had an idea to be to sleep on a fire escape. The most stunning looking newspaper was one I ever knew in Zoo Backer, I'm thrilled dining on a swifty movie train. My mother-in-law calls me a snore. The only time I sneezed was in the high altitude of Mexico City. Theaters, however, their demise by the intolerance of boy office attendants and under speculation greed. I once shot a mole of my palaman lying to hold a burglar in a Cincinnati hotel.

Sun on water fires me with a yearning for far away places. Lying children tickle me pink. The first gift I ever gave my wife was a 35-cent red-ribboned box of Lowrey's candy. Was I putting it on? My inclination is to pronounce fatigue FAT-tye. I stand for hours at cheap auctions and usually come away with pinches. The best named orchestra leader was Art Hickman. I often wonder why paper cups make me taste so uninteresting. The biggest vote-getting phrase out of the campaign so far is "the forgotten man." As max-kish as I am, nobody expresses delicate conposure like Lillian Gish.

I am successfally bored looking at kid pictures of others, but I always imagine mine will interest everybody. The service of no other institution has given me so much annoyance as laundries. I have been away with 19 fresh blossoms at a sitting.

Britain takes the depressed with better grace than any other country over there. I'm forced intending to spend an evening playing checkers, but never around to it. You should see me in knickers. And in a high hat I look like a dude choropleth. My guest book contains the names of 26 men who were in, honest four years ago. But, since two are like the rest of us, we have girls today. In all my life, I never addressed a stranger except a nurse girl as "Duchess" when my wife wants to make me blush before company, she inquires "How many kity men?"—Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

MIDSUMMER LOVERS.

It is almost as hard for some men to get along with only one summer romance a season, as it would be for a woman to get along with only one beach ensemble.

The girl with plenty of sex-appeal can get almost any man on her list, perhaps; but it takes a financial appeal plus some of emotional appeal to get his name on the dotted line of a marriage certificate, these days.

Stirring brings everything to the surface; and this big financial stir-up is going to enable us to skim off all the lightweight, four-flushers, bouncers, false-alarmers and tinnier sports, which have encumbered society for the last decade, and made life such a bore for the rest of us.

A man's love may survive a red-hot quarrel; but what takes all the heart and enthusiasm out of him, is a woman's determination to go back, die it up and warm it over, every few days.

Life, the average man feels, is quite as much as the baby, but a different way. Surely, if asked, her mother would say: "A little cadaver after dinner every day."

How thoroughly the expanded alleged child's inner life is one can not know, it did, however, relieve her sufficiently to permit any further thierer.

A man loves a woman only as long as he finds her lovable; until he finds some other woman more lovable. But a woman is supposed to go on automatically loving her husband, until the judge tells her she can stop.

Heat makes everything expand—even the masculine heart. The why it can always accommodate two or three girls at a time in its midsummer moonlight season.

All that a Tired Married Man needs to do to satisfy his wife's hunger these days, is to turn on the radio and get a croquet. Of these modern adventures—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A LITTLE THIEF.

A little girl in the second grade was found to have stolen small amounts of money over a period of several months. The beginning of her thefts dated from about the time when her mother had returned from the hospital with a new baby.

The child had shown every evidence of delight over the baby. She had asked to hold it, had run errands for it and proudly shown it to visitors.

Conversation with a psychologist tactfully brought up the matter of the stealing. What had she done with the money?

"Oh, I bought candy."

"Yes, especially when I am lying in bed at night. Then sometimes I eat a whole bagful before I go to sleep."

Only after several weeks did the child admit that since the new baby had come she has felt out in the cold. Especially, she thought, it must be nice to be so little that you could just fit close in mother's arms. "I'm so big," she sighed.

The psychologist then ventured to explain to the child that enjoying sweets in just the way she did was the kind of pleasure which she thought her baby brother must have when he lay in his mother's arms. What was right for a baby was not right for a big girl. Her mother undoubtedly loved her.

My Beauty Hint

By FRANCES DYE

WITH the swimming season is over many women wish to get rid of the sunburn acquired during hot hours on the beaches. I have an old fashioned recipe which I have found helps me to remove both a tan and freckles.

I mix enough buttermilk with sufficient common salt to create a paste. Then I apply the paste to my face, neck and arms. I permit it to remain on for 15 minutes keeping it moist with the buttermilk, then let the mixture dry into a mask for at least 20 minutes. Next I remove it with warm water. I have found these applications will make my skin much fairer.

Pale

The heat is none too good for a pale especially if that particular pale is a good looking, fit and happy looking dog. At least that seems to have been the idea of a little youngster who with his dog was causing people to take a second look as he hurried up the pavement on the main drag one evening this week. Not that they knew they were attracting attention for the lad was too busy piloting his car through sidewalk traffic and the dog was having too good a time taking in the sights from the improvised rumble seat on the rear of the volapucke. One guess is that this wasn't the first time the dog had occupied this comfortable observation seat for he was as calm as a reasoned globe trotter. Across the end of the rumble seat in big black letters was the word "Dick" which in this case probably meant all others keep out.

Names

ROAD MARKINGS which guide the destinies of drivers of motor vehicles and those entrusted to their care will have to be just a trifle more explicit if travelers afar from their native camping grounds are going to return to the home fires with a clear conception of the places they have seen. A stranger in our midst recently was in the "Hill Times" as a motor trip to a point some miles north of here. The route led through Crawford county. Places of interest as well as towns (the latter were usually plainly designated on the signposts) were pointed out en route and the visitor was really interested in what she was seeing. The village of Broken Sword was negotiated and a few miles farther was a sign proclaiming to the motorist who knew his traveling that he had best drive carefully. It was too much for the visitor who crashed through with "gee you have funny names for towns up here. First it's Broken Sword and now it's Loose Stone."

Ancient Etiquette

THIRTEENTH century etiquette was taken seriously by those who moved in the best circles and an authority on manners took it upon himself to outline 50 courtesies of the table. Here are a few:

If your friend is with you at the table be cheerful and eat while he eats even if you have had enough before he finishes he might otherwise wise out of shame stop before his hunger is satisfied.

In handling your bowl or plate at the table place your thumb only on the edge.

Do not mix together on your plate all sorts of foods meat and eggs. It may disgust your neighbor.

Always remember if a friend is dining with one to help him to the choice parts.

"When eating do not pick the teeth with the fingers."
